

Cycle path up for council vote soon

posted Jun 21, 2013

A major piece of the cycling path puzzle will be laid into place this summer, if council approves a contract for $877,693 to Mission Contractors.

The money will be for a new, separated pathway for use by cyclists and pedestrians on the north side of Lougheed Highway between 216th and Laity streets.

Once consultants fees, landscaping and improvements to the corner of Laity Street are added, the 635-metre project comes to $1.1 million.

However, grants of $758,831 are reducing the cost to the district.

The project includes building a retaining wall, sidewalks, street lights, curbs and gutters and will provide an important link for cyclists trying to connect with cycle paths in the downtown area and farther west.
